

Failory

Interviews

Blog

Graveyard

Products

SubscribeDinnr

Ingredients and recipe to create
meals at home

Startup Cemetery

GENERAL INFORMATION

Category:
Food & Beverage

Country:
United Kingdom

Started: 2012

BUSINESS FAILURE

Outcome: Shut Down

Cause: No Market Need

Closed: 2014

FOUNDERS & EMPLOYEES

Number of Founders: 2

Name of Founders:
Adil Mohammed, Michal
Bohanes

Number of Employees:
1-10

FUNDING

Number of Funding
Rounds:
1

Total Funding Amount:
£60K

Number of Investors: 1

What was Dinnr?

Dinnr was a web platform which allowed customers to select a recipe on the website and order pre-measured ingredients accompanied with printed instruction which would be delivered to them on the same day. The only item clients were required to have at home, besides an equipped kitchen, were oil, salt, and pepper. Dinnr did not provide readymade food, it only provided the customer with ingredients

The All-In-One Newsletter for Startup Founders

90% of startups fail. Learn how to not to with our weekly guides and stories. Join 40,000+ founders.

Subscribe For

and instructions. An exception was made on popular celebrations like Valentine's Day, Christmas, and Thanksgiving, where they actually offered special ready to eat meals.

Why did Dinnr fail and shut down?

Dinnr failed because from the beginning there wasn't a real market need for the business. Besides, if people had markets and superstores close to them (as it is often the case in developed countries), there would be no need for them to order ingredient when they could go themselves and buy what they needed. Dinnr concentrated on providing and delivering ingredient but the reality is that most potential customers would have rather ordered ready-made meals instead of only ingredient which will then have to prepare. And while the product might have been useful in some cases, the demand for the product was low and it resulted in low-profit margin.

The Dinnr team seems to have developed a product that they personally liked without conducting thorough market research first. They conducted few interviews and concentrated on marketing their service rather than inquiring on the challenges the average customer faces with grocery shopping. They overlooked the fact that pitching a product instead of conducting solid market research gives great statistics on paper but will often lead to nothing but disappointment after the product launches.

Moreover, when starting out, Dinnr, set high monthly goals for themselves but they were too ambitious and failure to meet their own expectations might have dealt them an ulterior mental blow.

Go on Reading

- Medium: Seven lessons I learned from the failure of my first startup, Dinnr
- Crunchbase: Dinnr

More Cemetery Posts

Zoomo

P2P transactions of pre-owned cars

Transportation India Bad Business Model

PepperTap

Large and fast grocery delivery service

Food & Beverage India Poor Product

Vine

Platform to share short looping video clips

Social Media United States Multiple Reasons